Sherbrooke's Prize Winning Roses

It is now nineteen years since SHERBROOKE'S ROSES were first offered from my nursery, then located at Cornelius, Oregon.

Many customers calling at the garden tell me that the roses they bought from me when I was "down in Oregon" are still flourishing and want more of the same splendid plants.

Cheap roses are usually worth just what is paid for them, require as much space and attention as my worth while plants which if treated right will produce prize winning blooms.

When comparing prices remember that there is scarcely an article of merchandise in which the quality may differ more widely than in rose plants. Unfortunately the difference is not always manifested in appearance, but in performance.

SHERBROOKE GARDENS are easy to find. Located two blocks up the hill from the old brick buildings in Kirkland, right on the highway (Lake Washington Blvd.) the place with the beautiful white lattice fence.

Visitors always welcome to inspect my Roses, Irises, Peonies, Glads, Oriental Poppies, Delphinium, St. Egid Anemones and hardy perennials when in bloom. You will not be asked to leave an order, they speak for themselves if you are interested.

Classification

T—Tea Rose. The original Tea Rose came from China. They are delicately beautiful, profuse bloomers and fairly hardy.

H. T.—Hybrid Tea rose. Obtained by crossing Tea roses with the old hardy Hybrid Perpetuals retaining the vigor and hardiness of the H. P., with the free blooming qualities of the Tea rose. By far the most popular class.

H. P.—Hybrid Perpetual rose. Not perpetual so far as blooming is concerned though quite hardy and vigorous.

Nois—Noisette. Climbing and pillar roses.

Pernet.—Pernetiana rose, a new family obtained by crossing the Austrian Briar with other classes. Introduced by Mons. Pernet-Ducher of Lyons, France.

FIRST SIZE. Plants will be strong two year old field grown, pruned back for convenience in shipping.

SECOND SIZE. Also strong, thrifty, field-grown plants, larger and much superior to pot-grown stock of highest grade. In digging we aim to preserve all the roots so that our second size plants usually have better roots than heavier stock carelessly dug.

Own Root or Budded Plants

When asked which is the better, no satisfactory reply can be made unless each variety is discussed individually.

Some varieties will not do well on their own roots. Lyons for instance and many others would be lost to our garden if not budded on a stronger growing root stock.

On the other hand, several good varieties will not succeed long when budded on a foster stock. Sunburst at first was a failure on Manetti and was about to be discarded until it was learned that it should be grown on its own roots. Marechal Niel is a short lived plant when budded, cankering at the bud junction with the stock, so should be grown on its own roots.

We aim to grow such varieties as succeed well on their own roots, in nature's own way, ON THEIR OWN ROOTS, budding such varieties as flourish best on a suitable stock.

There are several stocks, Manetti, Multiflora, Rosa Canina, Ragged Robin, etc. Each is best—best for the variety that succeeds best on it.

All plants do not grow uniformly, some are vigorous, others short and stalky, so that price does not govern size in all cases, for instance a two year old plant of Caroline Testout, at 50 cents may be twice the size of some varieties listed at $1.50.

LOCATION. Roses should be given the best location possible. They must have sunshine half the day in a well ventilated and well drained location away from trees and other shrubs. In his book on Rose culture, Dean Hole says, "No bough may darken, no drip may saturate, no roots may rob the rose."

SOIL. Give them the best you have, work it deeply and incorporate animal manure or commercial fertilizer in liberal quantities.

PLANTING. Make a hole to fit the roots and see that they are not twisted, bent or cramped or they will not be comfortable. If not comfortable they will not be happy. Allow the roots to go straight down in the most natural manner and sift pulverized soil between any that may cross each other. The plant should be set just a little deeper than when in the nursery row. Budded plants should be set with the union two inches or so below the surface. Firm the soil well about the roots in order to get immediate contact. Do not puddle them unless the soil is very dry.

MILDEW AND APHIDES are the most common pests. A solution of Liver of Sulphur (Potassa Sulphurated) diluted as directed on the can, adding a lump of Lifebuoy soap the size of a walnut, to two gallons of water, will combat both mildew and aphids. Some growers report success by using sal soda one ounce dissolved in six quarts of water. Spray two or three days in succession, early in the morning before the sun is too hot and spray the ground about the base of plants also. The finger and thumb method of squashing aphids if resorted to in time is very effective.

CULTIVATION. Roses appreciate much attention and will not flourish if neglected. They must have moisture but not wet feet. Frequent cultivation is much better than continual splashing with the garden hose. "More hoes and less hose" is a good slogan.

PRUNING. March is the best time to prune. Long canes that thrash about in the winds should be shortened in the fall or securely tied. Remove all but newest canes, shorten these to an eye pointing outwards. The idea is to keep the center of the bush open for free circulation of air, thus diminishing mildew troubles. Removing side buds will increase size and quality of bloom.

Sherbrooke's Superb Peonies

Have been growing peonies for over twenty years with increasing enthusiasm and now have one of the highest class selections of this superb flower in the western states.

The Peony is the hardiest of hardy perennials withstanding temperatures of 60 degrees below zero and has been known to bloom each year for over fifty-five years in the same spot without special care.

They should only be moved in early autumn and planted shallow with only two inches of earth over the crown eyes. Deeper setting and spring planting are mostly responsible for their not blooming. Large clumps should never be planted without first dividing the roots into well balanced divisions of from two to five eyes each, planting in fresh soil in which peonies have never before been grown.

The figures preceding the name, represent the standard of perfection won in a voting contest conducted by the American Peony Society. Very few votes were from the Puget Sound section and as many varieties do much better here than in the eastern states, some of those with lower ratings are here equal to others with more favorable rating.

They must have a well drained soil with sunshine in order to flourish, Give them the best you have, a little clay or humus helps, but NEVER USE ANIMAL MANURE in planting peonies, bone meal and ground limestone with plenty of moisture at blooming time will produce the finest peonies in the country.

SIZE OF ROOTS: Prices quoted are for standard divisions of from three to five eyes.

COLORS: By cutting pink and yellow varieties in the bud stage and opening them in a cool dark room, the colors are intensified and preserved.

SELECTIONS: If not familiar with Peonies and desire me to select for you, just tell me what colors are preferred and the price you wish to pay. I'll be glad to select those of exceptional merit.

TRUE TO NAME. Every care is exercised to keep my stock clean and true to label and I will replace any that prove otherwise. While this is a guarantee yet I am not selling guarantees, just honest stock carefully grown and handled.

CARRIAGE PAID: Packing and postage free. Consider this when comparing prices.

Sherbrooke's Exquisite Irises

(TALL BEARDED IRIS)

For many years I have made a specialty of growing Irises. What I offer now is a selection of the numerous varieties I have tried out.

The German or IRIS GERMANICA, is a rhizomous Iris blooming before Decoration Day. Many are very fragrant and should be planted in August or early autumn for best results.

The Dutch, Spanish and English Irises are bulbous irises blooming in the order named.

The Siberian and Japanese Irises are roots and should be planted in a damp sour place, using no lime whatever.

The Japanese Iris is the last to bloom late in June and when this is through blooming "School's out" for the season as far as the Iris family is concerned although the German Iris, Mrs. Allen Gray, usually gives a second crop of flowers late in the autumn.

There are almost as many Iris "Fans" or fanciers as there are Rose enthusiasts. The Iris is fast coming into its own and increasing in popularity as each season brings into bloom the wonderfully beautiful new creations of modern hybridizers.

Some folks call them "Flags," they were once, now they are Irises for an Iris is a flag with a college education.

Contrary to the usual belief, the bearded Iris requires a well drained location and will surely rot if given a soggy wet location.

Plant in well prepared soil in which a handful of ground limestone has been mixed but with no fresh manure near the roots. The roots straight down with the rhizomes not more than two inches below the surface, they seem to require a sun baking after flowering.

While budding and blooming they require plenty of moisture and shallow cultivation, after which let them dry out.

LIST OF VARIETIES

The figures before each name indicate their standard of perfection as rated by a voting contest conducted by the National Iris Society, recently. Some of the ratings are not satisfactory for this Puget Sound climate as some of those with a low rating are much better than in the East, where the contest was conducted, and would score considerably higher here.

On all varieties priced 35c or less, I will furnish three for the price of two.

Japanese Iris

(IRIS KAEMPFERI)

These gloriously beautiful plants have flower stems four feet and over. The flowers are flat and measure six to ten inches across. They require a low damp situation on the sour side and absolutely no lime should be given.

Plant in October and November for best results. Order by number, please.

Bulbous Irises

The Dutch, Spanish and English Irises are grown from bulbs planted in September and October and the bulbs begin to spoil if kept out of the ground later.

Plant about two inches deep in well prepared, loose, fertile soil. They bloom in May and June.

Oriental Poppies

These gorgeous giants are perfectly wonderful and radiant in their decorative splendor. The roots should not be disturbed except while dormant during August and the early autumn. They require rich loam with very little fertilizer and should be planted with the crown not more than two inches below the surface. When tops and seed pods are removed in early summer another period of bloom may be had before frosts.

Anemone St. Brigid

(Winter Blooming)

By planting the little bulbs at intervals from August first to late April, their cheerful little poppy-like blooms may be had practically the whole year through, in this section of the Pacific Coast.

They are about the only color in the garden in January and February and even under the snow buds may often be found ready to open when brought into a warm bright room.

Plant in a bright sunny location in loamy soil that will retain moisture and not bake and yet is well drained, using leaf mould or peat moss with bone meal but no animal manure. Set two inches deep and ten inches apart, away from large shrubs and hot walls.

The bulbs are wretched looking things resembling dried up radishes, raisins and bits of potato peelings fit for the garbage can.

My superior strain has been the result of careful selection of seed from best type and color flowers.

They may be raised from seed planted in the open ground during March and April and in my garden will often bloom four months from sowing the seed and continue to bloom until the following June.

Early planted stock will usually go dormant in June or July and these should be dug and dried off for planting again in August or later. When taking their rest it must be a dry rest. Bulbs left in the ground eventually rot and disappear.

One year old bulbs, mixed colors and types, singles and doubles, $1.00 per dozen, $6.00 per hundred.

Two year old bulbs, $2.00 per dozen. $12.00 per hundred.

Seed, carefully selected, 50c for liberal package.

Ranunculus

A summer flowering bulb producing gorgeously colored flowers very similar to the Anemone.

The little bulbs should be planted early in the spring, during March preferred, never in the fall, as they are not hardy. The bulbs must be dug and stored for winter before the fall rains begin, then replanted the following spring. Planting and cultural directions similar to the Anemone. Bulbs, all types and colors mixed, $1.00 per dozen, $5.00 per hundred. Seed selected from double flowers of best colors, 25c package.

Tuberous Begonias

(For Shady Nooks)

Some very wonderful ruffled, fluted, plain single, semi double and fully double flowers of gorgeous coloring that succeed best in shady spots. This has been termed the "mocking bird" flower as they sometimes resemble Petunias, Peonies, Roses and various other flowers, so great is the variation in type. All exquisitely lovely.

Plant in April or May and take up for winter protection.

Medium size bulbs, mixed colors and types, 25c each, $2.50 per dozen.

Choice Hardy Perennials

A few of the more desirable sorts in field grown plants.

ANCHUSIA. Deep indigo blue, sometimes mistaken for Delphinium. 25c.

DELPHINIUM. A re-selection from the best strains of imported seed.

Some very fine things among them. Plants and clumps from 15c to $1.00 each according to size and quality. Seeds 50c, liberal package.

GEUM. At a distance they resemble Carnations, closer inspection reveals semi-double rose like blossoms, very attractive. Red (Mrs. Bradshaw) Yellow (Lady Stratheden) 25c each.

SCABIOSA CAUCASICA. Sometimes referred to as the perennial lace flower. Lavender blue 25c each.

SPIREA ASTILBE. A light pink plume like flower very affective for bouquets and baskets, 25c each.

STATICE LATIFOLIA. Sometimes referred to as the lavender baby breath. Fine for mixing with bouquets and baskets, 25c each.

THALICTRUM DIPTEROCARPUM. Dainty sprays of small lavender flowers with fern like foliage lending grace to any bouquet. Plants 10c to 25c each.

VIOLETTA. Jersey Gem, purple blue 15c to 50c each. Jersey Jewel, reddish purple and large, 35c to 75c each.

LILIUM CANDIDUM, also known as Madonna and St. Joseph lily. This "must" be planted in August or early September. Bulbs 25c, 35c and 50c each.

LILIUM AURATUM, the gold banded lily of Japan. Plant 5 to 7 inches deep in rich well drained soil and avoid injuring the surface feeding roots when cultivating. Large bulbs 50c each.

REGAL LILIES,

You simply must have a few of these to perfume the whole garden and neighborhood. Carmine pink outside and canary yellow throat, very attractive and satisfactory. Blooming size bulbs 25c to 50c each. Plant November to February. Be sure to include some in your order.

TERMS. Cash with order please. No C. O. D. orders will be sent out unless at least 25 per cent cash has been received before shipping.

VISITORS WELCOME at my gardens any time. Select your favorites whilst in bloom.

BARGAIN SALES

There is scarcely an article of merchandise in which the quality may differ more widely than in plants and seeds. It's not what you pay, but what you get for what you pay that counts. Discriminating gardeners admit that very good results may be had from 5 and 10 cent package seeds, but that the best strains of Delphinium, Anemone, Columbine and many other flowers are not to be had at these prices.

When the selling price is low the production cost must be correspondingly low. Specialists devote much time, care and effort selecting and reselecting from best types and colors producing these superior strains and they are entitled to greater compensation.

Our ambition should be to get best possible results, for we have too much invested in valuable space, time and energy to warrant economy in seeds, plants and bulbs. Too often the so-called bargain sales, of Roses for instance, are not bargains at all, the plants being seconds and culls from some grower's field clean up and if starting in the poultry business we would not expect to succeed with the other fellow's culls.

Where there is a proper balance between value and price, a bargain exists, but when the balance is lobsided it is either sacrifice or "bunk" for it is not what you pay, but what you get for what you pay that counts.

All prices quoted herein have been carefully balanced with value and are therefore bargains, but here are a few special lob-sided BARGAINS very much in the buyer's favor.
